LIMESTONE UNDER OUR FEET

Arriving at Laroque is a wonderful experience.

On the edge of the rocky plateau, overlooking the undulating hillsides of the Grande Combe de Saint-Laurent, LA-ROQUE sets the tone. Here, vines are planted everywhere in the three types of limestone that are emblematic of the appellation: blond clay (to the west) and red clay (Agen Molasse, to the east) on asteriated limestone plateaux, terraces to the east and hillsides to the west on fine creamy white clay (Fronsac molasse). And it is this variety of soils and relief that gives this vineyard its unique character.

Elegant, nuanced, floral, subtle, radiant, long, energetic, light, iodised.

THE LAROQUE VINEYARD

The Laroque vineyards, many of them old and all planted with authentic mass selections from the original Merlot and Cabernet Franc, represent an exceptional living heritage of 61 hectares. Naturally, each new planting is an opportunity to keep these priceless old vines alive. Being able to preserve them in their rich diversity is Laroque's good fortune.

Harmony, flesh, texture, complexity, vigour, depth of taste, flavour & relief.
